Pledge Summary

The Town of Black Mountain is a small mountain community located in Western North Carolina, 20 minutes outside of Asheville, in the Blue Ridge Mountains with a population of approximately 8,500 full-time residents. The Town continues to commit to restoring and preserving habitats that support the monarch's migration each year, maintaining pollinator-friendly habitat gardens, and maintaining official monarch waystations in four areas of Town. The Town encourages citizens to make a difference for the monarch by planting native milkweed and nectar plants to provide food and habitat for the monarch butterfly in locations where they live, work, learn, play and worship, and to encourage community activities to support and educate citizens on the monarch butterfly.
