

Borough of Audubon

Audubon, NJ

Mayor Robert Jakubowski

Pledge Summary

Audubon is a town with 9,000 residents living in one square mile in Camden County, New Jersey. Our resident lead Sustainable Audubon has been educating the town on many important environmental issues. This includes promoting the use of native plants and giving out trees to build our canopy. Two rain gardens were built as demonstration projects that included native plants and pollinators. They also added a monarch waystation in our public park. This is in addition to a waystation created by students at one of our grade schools. More waystations are being planned while this team of volunteers educates and encourages others in town to increase pollinators on their own properties.
