Borough of Englewood Cliffs

Englewood Cliffs, NJ

Mayor Mark Park

Pledge Summary

Englewood Cliffs, New Jersey is a scenic and forward-looking community of approximately 5,800 residents, ideally situated along the Hudson River and atop the iconic Palisades cliffs, just minutes from New York City. With its unique natural landscape and close proximity to a major metropolitan area, the Borough is committed to balancing environmental stewardship with thoughtful, sustainable growth. Englewood Cliffs is actively advancing efforts to support monarch butterfly and pollinator conservation through a combination of policy, public engagement, and targeted habitat initiatives. Planned actions include increasing the use of native plants and pollinator-friendly species such as milkweed in public spaces, coordinating with volunteers and the Palisades Interstate Parkway to expand habitat in appropriate open areas, and integrating these efforts into ongoing Shade Tree Commission and beautification initiatives. The Borough will also issue a formal proclamation recognizing the importance of monarch conservation, launch a public education campaign with dedicated online resources to encourage residents to create pollinator-friendly gardens, and incorporate awareness activities into community events such as Englewood Cliffs Day. Through these efforts, Englewood Cliffs aims to take a practical, community-driven approach to expanding pollinator habitat while fostering greater environmental awareness.
