City of Reno

Reno, NV

Reno City Councilmember Devon Reese

Pledge Summary

The City of Reno, Nevada sits at the base of the Sierra Nevada mountains along the Truckee River and is home to more than 275,000 residents in the heart of the Truckee Meadows. Reno is committed to protecting and enhancing habitat for monarch butterflies and other pollinators that are essential to healthy ecosystems and sustainable communities. Reno is proud to be a Bee City USA affiliate, reflecting our community's commitment to pollinator protection. The city works with local partners, community groups, and residents to support pollinator-friendly practices including the planting of native and drought-tolerant plants, creation of pollinator gardens, and educational outreach about the importance of bees, butterflies, and other pollinators. Through our Parks and Recreation Department, urban forestry initiatives, and community beautification programs, Reno continues to expand green spaces and incorporate pollinator-friendly landscaping in parks, medians, and public areas. Local organizations, schools, and volunteers also play an important role in creating habitat and raising awareness throughout the community. By participating in the Mayors' Monarch Pledge, Reno reaffirms its commitment to protecting monarch butterflies and other pollinators while continuing to build a resilient and environmentally responsible community for future generations.
