City of Portland

Portland, OR

Councilor Tiffany Koyama Lane

Pledge Summary

As a teacher and Portland City Councilor, I see every day how deeply our future is connected to the natural world that surrounds us here in the Pacific Northwest. The decline of western monarch butterflies reminds us that even the most iconic species depend on the small habitat choices we make in our neighborhoods, parks, and schoolyards. I am committed to helping Portland expand and protect pollinator habitat through planting native milkweed and nectar plants, strengthening pollinator-friendly spaces across our city, and engaging students, educators, and community members in hands-on conservation.
