City of Little Rock

Little Rock, AR

Mayor Frank Scott, Jr.

Pledge Summary

The City of Little Rock is the capital city of Arkansas, with a population of approximately 205,000. As the state's largest city and a growing hub of culture, commerce, and community, Little Rock sits at the heart of a region rich in natural heritage. Mayor Frank Scott, Jr. has committed to conserving the monarch butterfly and the pollinator community that are so important to our ecosystem and economic health. Mayor Scott looks forward to engaging residents and creating more pollinator habitat throughout the city. This commitment is already taking root - the Little Rock Zoo has been awarded grant funding this year to restore native plants and control erosion, with a particular focus on pollinator gardens, reflecting the community's dedication to protecting the species and wild spaces that make Little Rock a vibrant place to live.
